Mission Statement
Survivors of Torture, International:

- Facilitates the healing of torture survivors and their families;
- Educates professionals and the public about torture and its consequences;
- Advocates for the abolition of torture.

About Us
Survivors of Torture, International (SURVIVORS) was incorporated in February 1997 in response to a need in our community to bring assistance to a segment of the population that struggles with the wounds of politically-motivated torture. It is estimated that at least 35,000 survivors of torture live in San Diego County and 1.3 million live in the United States. Torture survivors often are left with lifelong physical and mental health problems if not treated by trained professionals.

Since 1997, SURVIVORS has engaged a caring network of professionals – board members, interpreters, therapists, physicians, dentists – and all of you in the community who give support and encouragement in many ways. To date we have served approximately 1,900 clients from more than 80 different countries. Your support enables us to help torture survivors rebuild their lives. Treatment helps survivors heal, reconnect with their families, go back to school, and find employment.

Torture Awareness Month: Number of Referrals to SURVIVORS Rising

June is Torture Awareness Month and June 26 is the United Nations International Day in Support of Victims of Torture. Sometimes people think that they haven’t met any torture survivors, but in fact they probably have. A survivor may be a member of your congregation, may work in your favorite restaurant, or their kids may go to school with your kids. People don’t readily identify themselves as torture survivors to unfamiliar people, sometimes not even to medical professionals or teachers. However, we know that approximately 35,000 live in San Diego and more are arriving every day.

In recent months, referrals to SURVIVORS have increased by 55% and continue at a steady rate. Increasing world conflicts, the Syrian refugee crisis, and the rise of ISIS (Islamic State of Iraq and Syria) are just some of the many reasons people flee and seek refuge or asylum in other countries.

San Diego County resettles thousands of refugees every year, more than any other county in California. It is estimated that 44% of refugees are torture survivors. SURVIVORS anticipates the rise in referrals to the program to remain constant through next year. The need for SURVIVORS’ holistic services will increase with each referral. Every torture survivor has the right to rehabilitation. SURVIVORS is the only accredited torture treatment program in San Diego creating a safe haven where they can rebuild their lives. Your continued support is needed and appreciated more than ever.

SURVIVORS’ Volunteer, Ginny Dunn, Awarded “Volunteer of the Year”

Congratulations to Ginny Dunn, who was awarded “Volunteer of the Year” at the Behavioral Health Recognition Dinner. Ginny has been volunteering at SURVIVORS for over 10 years. She started by assisting with small clerical tasks and today she is a volunteer driver, driving clients to and from therapy, medical, and dental appointments as well as to and from the weekly Men’s Group at SURVIVORS’ office. “Their strength and resilience,” says Ginny, “is what makes driving clients such a pleasure.” Several of the men Ginny drives weekly were among the 650 guests who attended the awards ceremony to celebrate the special evening with Ginny.

SURVIVORS’ clients have experienced profound physical and emotional trauma as a result of torture in their home countries. The ongoing involvement of medical and social service specialists can be overwhelming for clients. As a volunteer driver, Ginny is often the only person clients will interact with who is not in a professional role. Ginny helps create an inviting environment where they feel as though they are no longer patients, but Rebuilding Lives through Access to Transportation

San Diego is home to approximately 35,000 torture survivors. Of U.S. surveyed torture survivors, 69% have post-traumatic stress disorder and 52% suffer from major depressive disorder. Compounded by the stressors of acclimating to a new culture, trying to understand English, and being among strangers whom they find intimidating, many of our clients find public transportation debilitating. The obstacles of taking city buses, learning the routes, and knowing how to transfer may exacerbate their symptoms and render them home-bound. However, SURVIVORS offers transportation assistance to ease some of the difficulties and help clients become self-sufficient to travel around San Diego to their jobs, classes, and social events on their own.

Several times per year SURVIVORS’ staff and volunteers hold transportation classes to help clients feel comfortable taking public transportation. The class begins at the Old Town Transit Center, within walking distance of SURVIVORS’ office. Clients learn how to navigate the trolley and buses by taking a trip together. Thanks to a generous grant, clients are also given a one-month transit pass and are taught how to use and reload their Compass Cards. After receiving mental health services and learning how to use public transit, clients begin to feel comfortable getting around on their own. Many clients use the trolley and bus to secure employment and are able to afford their next bus pass without assistance.

Some clients may not feel safe on public transportation or in large groups of people. Some may require psychiatry or therapy before they are ready to leave their homes to begin working or going to school. In these cases, SURVIVORS’ clients are connected with volunteer drivers who take clients to and from appointments. Eventually clients may purchase their own vehicles or opt to take the bus, a promising sign that they are adjusting to their new lives in San Diego. Volunteer drivers are a stepping stone to clients’ self-sufficiency.

Additionally, when clients or their children express interest in biking as their preferred mode of transportation, SURVIVORS refers them to Bikes del Pueblo, a local nonprofit that provides our clients free refurbished bicycles and accessories, as well as safety and maintenance classes. One client, a man from Iraq pursuing his bachelor’s degree, received a bike to help him travel between home, school, and work. He told us, “It is really helping my health. I’m doing exercise and I feel so much better!”

friends. She has a gentle way of helping people to immediately feel at ease and at home. Although clients may not have fluent English skills, and Ginny may not speak their language, she has developed long-lasting friendships with the clients she drives.

Since October 1, 2015, Ginny and 226 other dedicated volunteers have contributed their free time to fulfilling SURVIVORS’ mission. Their activities ranged from newsletter folding to hygiene drives to the be-friend program and more. Additionally, 39 pro-bono professionals including physicians, dentists, nurses, graphic artists, web designers, editors, and finance professionals donated over 2,400 hours to SURVIVORS.

To Ginny and to every SURVIVORS’ volunteer, thank you for helping torture survivors rebuild their lives and become confident and productive members of our community.

Thanks to your support, survivors like Mina* are healing every day.

* Client name changed to protect her identity

When Mina* first came to SURVIVORS, she suffered from nightmares, withdrew from the outside world, and had no desire for any type of social activity. She had difficulty concentrating, felt uncomfortable around other people, and feared uniformed authority.

Mina had protested the presidential election in her home country in the Middle East; she felt the process was corrupt. During one type of social activity, she had difficulty concentrating, felt uncomfortable around other people, and feared uniformed authority.

When Mina first came to SURVIVORS, she was hesitant at first, became comfortable with SURVIVORS’ staff and contracted professionals. She began participating in group therapy, then individual therapy, and later requested psychological evaluation. Though she was ready, SURVIVORS helped her get a bus pass and enroll in a community college.

Recently, Mina was granted asylum. Right after she found out, she came straight to SURVIVORS’ office to give everyone a bus pass and enroll in a community college. Congratulations to...

- SURVIVORS’ Executive Director Kathi Anderson who has been elected to serve as the North American representative to the Denmark-based International Rehabilitation Council for Torture Victims.
- SURVIVORS’ Grants Manager Alicia De-Leon-Torres for being honored as a “Woman of the Year” by California State Assembly Speaker Emeritus Toni Atkins.

Commitment to Transparency and Good Stewardship

In addition to being accredited by the Better Business Bureau for our excellent stewardship of donor dollars, as of May 10, 2016, SURVIVORS is an official GuideStar platinum organization. This means SURVIVORS is also being acknowledged for transparency by publicly sharing outcomes with our funders.

In honor of Torture Awareness Month (June), a photographic exhibit featuring two of SURVIVORS’ clients is on display at the La Mesa Public Library. Sanctuary & Sustenance sheds light on several points of entry into San Diego for newcomers as well as what it is like for them to rebuild their lives here. You can see the exhibit at 8074 Allison Avenue in La Mesa from June 1 to June 30.
